THE HOUSE IN AN UPROAR

Mr. Bland's Remarks Are Flavored with Wormwood and Gall.

HE REFUSES TO BE CALLED DOWN

In a Bitter Speech the Noted Silverite Denounces Both Democrats and Republicans as Anarchists—Other Members Attempt to Call Him to Order in Vain—The Chair Powerless to Restore Peace.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—REPRESENTATIVE BLAND created the first uproar in the house this afternoon. He secured the floor upon a motion to discharge Representative Adams, who was under arrest, and upon this motion launched off into a bitter speech, in which he denounced both Democratic and Republican members. He said the example set by some of them in defying the orders of the house was anarchy and that they were in every sense of the word revolutionaries. He was called to order several times. Representative Bryan, Democrat, first called the Missouri silverite down. Later Mr. Coombs of New York, and other Democrats, attempted to take his seat because of impropriate language and because he was not talking on the question under discussion. The presiding officer was apparently unable to keep the house under control, notwithstanding the fact that the Republicans took little if any part in the row in which Bland was chief actor.

About fifty members were present at the tonight's session. After two or three bills had been considered without action the point of no return was made by several members, and after a division was had and a vote by tellers taken showing the presence of 35 members, the house at 9:35 adjourned.

AN AGED COUPLE MURDERED.

Jacob A. Moore and Mrs. Jane Raymond.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Sullivan county, after an episode of six months, is again called upon to chronicle a double murder, that for atrocity and ghastliness is unequalled in the history of Sullivan county crime. The victims of this terrible tragedy are Jacob A. Moore and Mrs. Jane Raymond, his housekeeper, two aged residents of Monticello, five miles north of Monticello. Mr. Moore was 55 and Mrs. Raymond was 50 years of age. The crime was discovered by William Beebe at 10 o'clock this morning. The old couple were evidently preparing to retire for the night when the assassin did his work. Mr. Moore had removed his boots, and the slippers and dry goods, which are the last vest of a farmer's duty before going to bed, were placed in their accustomed place. Under the left ear of the aged man was found a pistol wound. A huge stick of wood was lying on the ground at the outside of the door, covered with blood, and his person evidenced that it had been used freely over his head and shoulders. The room was in a state of confusion. Blood was spilled freely and the whole place bore the evidence that a terrible struggle for life had taken place.

Mrs. Raymond presented a most ghastly and revolting spectacle. She had evidently tried to aid the old gentleman and was struck down by the assassin before she could be of service. Her face was terribly mutilated and her neck was cut in several places to the bone. A common barn shovel was used as the instrument of death.

No cause for the crime can be assigned unless it is that the old man had only a few days previous drawn a quarterly pension of $45 from the government for services as a soldier in the civil war.

ELECTION BOARD OF JAYS.

Manifesting Returns from Miners Mills.

WILKES-BARRE, Feb. 23.—The election board at Miners Mills, three miles from here, was sent for by the court today for irregularities found in their count. On their arrival Judge Rice made an order to have the ballot box opened in court and the vote for congressman at large recounted, as the return sheet read, Grow 33, Hancock 165; the duplicate return, Grow 32, Hancock 175; and the tally sheet, Grow 70, Hancock 165. The board admitted also that they neglected to count the vote for judge of election, and put down 70 votes as a complimentary vote for the Republican candidate, the vote for the Democratic candidate being much larger. Judge Rice ordered that the district attorney indict the board under the act of 1893.

VAN DUSEN NOT GUILTY.

The Accused Bookkeeper of the Consolidated Bank Vindicated.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—The jury in the case of Matthew J. Van Dusen, Jr., formerly a bookkeeper at the consolidated National bank, who was charged with aiding Paying Teller Theodore F. Baker in the embezzlement of $47,000 from the institution, this afternoon rendered a verdict of not guilty. Van Dusen's defence was that because of utter confidence in Baker he never questioned any entries the paying teller made. Baker recently paid guilty to the offence.

THE MISSING STUDENT.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 23.—As a result of the coroner's inquest into the recent chlorine outrage at Cornell college, the police officials are making diligent effort to find the missing student, C. L. Dingsen, of Buffalo, and F. L. Taylor, of Plainfield, N. J., who live at 6 Cook street, and also the mysterious C. E. Mitchell, whose name was on the piece of brown wrapping paper. They have succeeded in finding that F. L. Taylor is still in the city and has proved an alibi by reputable witnesses who were his companions the night of the tragedy. C. E. Mitchell has also been found.

He is not a student at Cornell, but is studying in a preparatory school here. He has also succeeded in proving an alibi. The case of C. L. Dingsen, of Buffalo, N. Y., however, looks very dark. He has positively cleared out and went away early Wednesday morning. His friends claim that he is innocent and will be back in the city today, but the officials are waiting a very strong net around him.

THE OFFICIAL RETURNS.

Grow's Plurality Now Looms Up to One Hundred and Eighty-two Thousand.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 23.—Official returns from every county in the state except Allegheny and Armstrong, and with late careful estimates from those two counties show a plurality of 182,322 for Grow (Rep.) for congressman at large.

THE READING CASE.

Proceedings Drag Wearily Along Before Master Crawford.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—The system of accounts pursued by the Philadelphia and Reading railroad coal and iron companies occupied the attention of Master Crawford today, at the hearing upon the petition of Isaac L. Rice, for the removal of the receivers. President Harris described in detail how the accounts of the companies are kept, and declared that the methods employed are thoroughly practical and would compare favorably with the accounting system of any similar corporations.

Attorney Bijou, on behalf of the petitioner, stated that he wanted the reports of the expert accountants Little and Comptroller Jones upon the financial condition of the Reading property, filed in court subject to the use of the security holders, and until this should be done he declared he would not close his case.

The master made no ruling upon the matter and the hearing was adjourned until Thursday next at 11 a. m. It is probable that witnesses will be examined on Monday regarding the ownership of the $320,000 Reading general mortgage bonds when Mr. MeLood pledged as his personal property with Prince & Co. as collateral in the stock transaction.

SUICIDE OF A CONVICT.

Edward Harris Hears Himself with Pieces of a Sheet.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 23.—Edward Harris, a colored convict, committed suicide at the state prison, at an early hour this morning by hanging himself to his cell door with pieces of the sheet used on his sleeping cot. Harris was 32 years of age and was serving a five-year term for a first indecent assault in Salem county.

He tried to end his existence by hanging last night, but his attempt was frustrated by a vigilant turnkey. Harris was then put in a straight jacket, but he then cut it asunder during the night and at dawn another turnkey found his dead body swinging against his cell door.

THE ARREST OF A BAD CROWD

Four Tough Citizens Charged with Having Committed Burglary.

SOME SHARP DETECTIVE WORK

James Walsh, John McAndrews, Michael Naland and Arthur Long, Thought to Have Been Concerned in the Pine Brook Burglaries, Bagged Last Evening—History of the Case Which Has Puzzled the Police—A Fine Haul.

For their part in the burglaries which occurred at Pine Brook Monday night, James Walsh, John McAndrews, Michael Naland and Arthur Long have been arrested. Nearly all the goods stolen have been located. To the clever detective work on the part of Officer David Roche is due the incarceration of the men and the locating of the goods.

Walsh identified. Five burglaries occurred in the northern section of the city on the night in question. Among the places entered was that of Benjamin Levi, 1016 Capone avenue, and David Brandenburg, 225 Ash street. Goods to the amount of $300 were taken from the former and Brandenburg's loss was confined to $100 worth of carpenter tools. The burglars were frightened away by Mrs. A. G. Brock while trying to force an entrance into Roos meat market, on Pine street.

Long and Walsh were arrested Thursday on suspicion and, as the police say, "the screws put on them" to make them confess their part in the robbery. Both disclaimed any knowledge of the affair. Mrs. Brock came to the station house and identified Walsh as one of the men engaged in the Rose burglary. Still both men remained dumb.

GOOD DETECTIVE WORK.

As a subterfuge Long was released on bail as a witness when wanted. In the meanwhile Detective Roche had busied himself on a still hunt for the Levi goods, which he located. He made Walsh's parents believe he knew where the plunder was hidden and they visited their son at the station house and prevailed upon him to reveal what he knew of the robbery. Walsh was also made to believe that Long had "peached" on him. Under these circumstances he hinted to the officer that he was on the right scent.

At nearly hour this morning Officer Roche and Sergeant Davis and Detour arrested Naland, Long and McAndrews at Pine Brook. The two former were the ring leaders, and before the police are through with them will probably have to answer for a number of other burglaries which have occurred at various dates and places mentioned in Miss Pollard's public statement.

MOHR WANTED $100,000.

He Waves a Bluegen and Lands in the Arms of a Policeman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—At 9:30 o'clock this morning Alexander Mohr entered the store of Ludwig Bros. 38 West Fourth street, and waving a bluegen, threateningly demanded $100,000 from Mr. Ludwig at once. Mr. Ludwig grabbed the man by the wrists and called for his bookkeeper, and they succeeded in ejecting the man from the store.

The crank raved and fought furiously all the way to the door, but his resistance was unavailing and he was soon landed into the street and handed over to the policeman. Mohr, until a few months ago, had been a clerk in the store. He developed such queer tendencies that Mr. Ludwig found it necessary to discontinue his services.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 23.—The supreme court today decided the case of Rector Joseph R. Jennings, of Grace Episcopal church, Westfield, N. J., against Bishop Scarborough, of the vestrymen of the parish. The decision upholds the rector in his contention that he was irregularly dismissed. He was charged with immorality and can only be dismissed, says the court, after a fair and full church trial.

SEARCHERS HARD AT WORK.

They Make but Little Headway at the Gaylord Mine.

WILKES-BARRE, Feb. 23.—The searchers continue to work hard at the Gaylord mine, but they are meeting with little headway. They have reached what is known as Cannahan's gangway, but to reach where the unfortunate are supposed to be buried they will have to go over 700 feet of the plane, and for timber this as they go along is a dangerous task.

A number of men headed by Ike Carroll went down into the No. 4 shaft, and from this place they entered into the Gaylord on the No. 2 plane. They report the mine to be in a very bad condition and it is their belief that the men will not be found in weeks.

CHIVALROUS KENTUCKIANS.

Maddison Pollard Oulaged to Fight a

Combust of Gallantry.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 23.—The testimony in the Breckinridge-Pollard case taken for the defense here today by Ex-Examiner Bullock, proves of much value to the defendant, inasmuch as the depositions of R. R. Russell and John Brand were corroborated by man of high standing and unimpeachable integrity. The first witness was Dr. R. D. Greene, who said he had been called to a disreputable house to attend James Roles, and while there Roles told him of a young woman whom he said he intended to educate and marry, as she had an ambition for learning. Roles told him her name was Pollard and that she had been dismissed from the Wesleyan college in Cincinnati.

William Wood, an old farmer of Franklin county, testified that he had known Miss Pollard since she was a child. He was engaged to marry her and gave her an engagement ring. He said it was Roles who robbed him of his fiancée. The testimony of Hiram Kaufman, who was the butler at the famous saylun while Roles confined the farm for that institution, went to the effect that he had seen Miss Pollard in house of questionable character intoxicated and was also acquainted with the unlawful relations existing between the girl and Roles.

The other two witnesses examined today were John A. Bailey, formerly clerk of the Woodford county court, and John S. Kain, night clerk at the Phenix hotel. Their depositions merely showed facts concerning dates when Col. Breckinridge was at the Phenix hotel, or attending a case in Woodford county, which dates at variance with the date and place mentioned in Miss Pollard's public statement.

When asked whether she had ever been guilty of immorality Mrs. Martin said that from 1870 to 1887 she was daily before the American public and that no charge had ever been made against her character.

Sir Charles Russell, the attorney general, who appeared for the trustees of the British museum, severely cross examined Mrs. Martin in regard to her life as a clairvoyant, stockbroker and actress in San Francisco.

When questioned in regard to the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher Mrs. Martin said that if the Beecher-Tilton case was to be tried again in London she must have time to prepare her case.

After considerable testimony had been taken the case was adjourned.

VICTORIA WOODHULL'S CASE.

Her Suit Against the Trustees of British Museum Heard Yesterday.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The case of Mrs. John Biddulph Martin, formerly Victoria Woodhull, against the trustees of the British museum, was heard in the high court of justice, Queen's Bench division, before Baron Colclough today.

Sir Richard Webster, formerly attorney general under Lord Salisbury, represented the plaintiff. Sir Richard said that certain books in the museum contained imaginary interviews with Victoria Woodhull, in which she was quoted as acknowledging immoral conduct.

Mrs. Martin took the stand and gave the story of her life. During the course of her statements Mrs. Martin said that the interview published in a Chicago paper in 1872 and copied into the book donated to the British Museum and which was one of those which she complained against, had never occurred. The statements made in this interview, said Mrs. Martin, were false.

When asked whether she had ever been guilty of immorality Mrs. Martin said that from 1870 to 1887 she was daily before the American public and that no charge had ever been made against her character.

Sir Charles Russell, the attorney general, who appeared for the trustees of the British museum, severely cross examined Mrs. Martin in regard to her life as a clairvoyant, stockbroker and actress in San Francisco.

WITNESSED THE BATTLE.

Discharged Sailors Give Graphic Description of the Rio Janeiro Conflict.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Belgian steamer Odera, which arrived today from Rio Janeiro, brought six men from the American fleet at that place. They were sent home because their terms of enlistment had expired. The sailors had not been allowed shore leave and knew nothing of affairs in the city, but claimed to have had plenty of diversion in the harbor. They spoke rather scoldingly of Brazilian warfare. Two days before they left Rio Admiral Benham had his first brush with the insurgents as the outcome of the latter's annoying American merchantmen. This is the story as they tell it.

On Jan. 26 Admiral De Gama fired a shot across the bow of a small boat which was carrying a line for the American bark Amy, then docking. On the following day the captain of the bark went aboard the San Francisco and complained to Admiral Benham. The next evening the whole American fleet cleared the harbor, and early on the morning of the 23d the Detroit steamed inside by the docks and near the Trajano, Guanabara and La Liberdade, the insurgent warships. The Trajano again attempted to interfere with the docking of the American bark, and Captain Brownson, of the Detroit, ordered a six pound shot fired across her bow from the starboard gun forward, in charge of Gunner O'Donnell. "That was a challenge," said Seaman Blaisdell, "to let them know what we were there for."

The Trajano answered with a black shot to leeward, which the sailor explained meant "I understand."

Sailor Bruce then described what followed: "Our captain then sent Midshipman McGill with the steam launch to ask Admiral Da Gama what he proposed to do. Da Gama sent back word that if we fired into his fleet, he would return the fire. Then Captain Brownson sent another message saying that he had already fired into Da Gama's vessel and again would like to know what Admiral Da Gama was going to do about it. Word came back that the insurgent admiral would not do anything about it. Then there was a conference of the insurgent officers and Admiral Da Gama offered to surrender to Admiral Benham. Our admiral told Da Gama that if he did so, he would have to turn him over to the Brazilian government as he was not recognized as a belligerent. So there was no surrender. No more guns were fired up to the time the Odera left port."
